It is an interesting topic for spiritual readers, and the researcher tried his best to address the meaning of pilgrims in life. However, it is slightly hard for the general public, which does not have the interest and understanding of pilgrims. I suggest the researcher address more discussion to justify the need for the study and how the findings will contribute to the academic literature and the management of the spiritual industries. I suggest the authors use the latest references and justify how the study or findings are vital to the current situation.
