

Review of: "Expanding Participatory Epidemiology to Explore Community Perceptions of Human and Livestock Diseases among Pastoralists in Turkana County, Kenya"

Richard Nyamota¹

¹ Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The background information is clearly written and coherently presents the research gap the study intends to cover and clearly fits the presented context. For the materials and methods part, it is not outrightly easy to locate the strategic locations on the provided map in figure 1 (Nadapal, Turkwel, Kakuma, and Lokwamosing). Further, it would be valuable to provide the reasons why these four locations were chosen, and this will further strengthen the context of the paper (what makes them strategic?). Since the study took a one health dimension, the authors considered human and Livestock, was there any information on what was happening in wildlife within the study area?