

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Autosomal dominant cerebellar ataxia type I

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Autosomal dominant cerebellar ataxia type I. ORPHA:94145

Autosomal dominant cerebellar ataxia (ADCA) type I is a group of spinocerebellar ataxias (SCAs) characterized by ataxia with other neurological signs, including oculomotor disturbances, cognitive deficits, pyramidal and extrapyramidal dysfunction, bulbar, spinal and peripheral nervous system involvement.