This article is generally well written and designed. But it seems that the quality of the article will be increased if the following points are also concerned:

- The concept of water elasticity of demand and its amount in different countries should be discussed, and this number should be mentioned in Brazil.
- The amount of water tariffs for different groups of people in different countries should be given and compared with each other in terms of GDP.
- There are some sources that are outdated (for example, for 2008). I recommend using newer sources.
