This paper is study of skin related health issues among health care workers during COVID-19 pandemic in Pakistan due to utilization of PPE. The topic is quite interesting but there are several short comings in the paper.

1. The paper requires thorough proof reading, spell checking and sentence grammatical structure.
2. The sample size used for research is very small.
3. Since the paper studies skin related issues, The sample should have contained cases related to severe skin issues like eczema, psoriasis etc. This would have made the study stronger.
4. I have issue with the data collection methodology as it is questionnaire based and completely subjective to one's knowledge of skin related issues
