1. The key contribution needs to be included in the abstract.
2. The abstract does not include any key result of the work regarding performance.
3. Discussions on related work and its limitations still need to be included. This is very important in a research paper to define the scope of the work based on the analysis of the existing related works.
4. In section 4, results/experiments and analysis are presented. However, the overall result of this research study (by percentage) needs to be included.
5. Performance analysis with a previously developed system should be demonstrated.
6. In conclusion, the overall result by percentage must be mentioned.
