

Review of: "The Support and Rehabilitation of Refugees – Personal Opinion and Experience"

Isabella Ng

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article shares invaluable experience of the writer who has been supporting refugees in different places. But it is still like a travelogue even though the writer has incorporated the opening about “covering concepts relating to the support of refugees in their own countries.” But I did not see much of the concepts discussed in the paper. The commentary and challenges are important. And i think if actual concepts relating to the support of refugees are discussed instead of descriptive narrative of the experience it would make it more analytical.