

Review of: "[Case Report] High Bifurcation and Anatomical Variation of the Brachial Artery"

Shengbo Yang<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Zunyi Medical University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

There are many types of reported anatomical variations, which have certain guiding significance for surgery and blood pressure measurement. The results section of this report in the abstract is not described in detail and lacks novelty, and should not include discussion content, such as arterial sacs. The discussion section was not profound and did not clarify the differences between one's own research findings and those of others.