

Review of: "Case Report: Urinary Proteomic Analysis of Exercise-Induced Rhabdomyolysis with Acute Kidney Injury"

Zakaria Hamdan<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Internal Medicine, An-Najah National University, Palestine, State of

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Interesting case, very descriptive, and a novel idea to review associated proteins with rhabdo and AKI. I did not notice a urine analysis and specifically an evaluation for hematuria and its resolution and trend. The initial workup must include a urine analysis, and its trend may help with the evolution of the resolution of AKI.