The article aims to achieve 4 objectives, which it proves to achieve. However, from a strictly methodological point of view, the proposed analysis has no soundness. It is a mere exercise in style, simply a descriptive study of a case (a scientific journal) whose selection is not even clear, except for the fact that the journal in question is celebrating its 50th anniversary. It is not the best scientific journal in the sector, and, above all, no comparative analysis is proposed with other similar journals except in general terms and limited to journal impact indicators (without even specifying which year they refer to).

It is worth pointing out several typing errors. The references also contain errors in the DOIs mentioned and report several articles not cited in the paper.
