Thank you for allowing me to review the manuscript.

It seems to me to be a relevant topic considering the current use of communication technologies by adolescents.

The introduction shows the problematization of the phenomenon under study. In the methodology, they give clarity to the entire process they followed, as well as the analysis with each of the models used.

I would like to suggest that, based on the results obtained (which seem important to me because intervention strategies can be promoted in the face of the problems encountered), the suggestions section be expanded even further in the sense of how these results can be applicable to the reality that exists in the lives of that age group.
