Review of: "Mapping the Canadian Research Landscape in 2023"

Atefeh Mohebi[1]

1 University Canada West

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper provides a pivotal and comprehensive overview of Canada's academic prowess, showcasing the leading roles of institutions like the University of Toronto and the innovative research environments of private entities such as Trinity Western University. Through a detailed Scopus data analysis, the paper highlights Canada's strengths in interdisciplinary research and key areas like Engineering and Medicine. This study stands out for its depth and clarity, offering valuable insights into the collaborative and diverse nature of Canadian research. A must-read for anyone interested in the current state and potential of Canada's academic landscape.