This article contains valuable information about a personal experience and the implications of those experiences in his positioning as an English teacher. Nowadays, it is crucial to allow this kind of articles that goes beyond positivist positioning and open spaces to other English teachers to reflect about their stories and transformations.

Regarding the organization and structure of the paper, I would say that it could be useful to use APA 7 as the norm to be implemented in the citation and referencing. There is not any referencing within the text, at least none with the information to be easily identified.

I would suggest to make the analysis more robust and analytical to help the reader understand better the transformations and different positioning you are mentioning.
