

Review of: "Human Rights Aspects in Infrastructure Projects in the President Regulation Number 120 Year 2022"

Thanikachalam Vedhathiri¹

¹ National Institute of Technical Teachers Training and Research (NITTTR)

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The author expressed his concern about the possible violation of human rights. There are two sides to a coin: one side is the growth of the nation through infrastructure development, and the other side is the protection of human rights.

The author should have described the possible violations if the planned project is implemented. In every project, needed land has to be acquired from the people, and they have to be compensated either through payment or by granting new land as per the law of the country. In every project, planners carefully plan the route without affecting many historical sites of national importance. They also get public feedback on the designed route, possible loss, and the method of replanning of certain stretches. The author has not conducted a detailed literature study on planning new roads and how compensation has been awarded.

This article needs to be revised to meet the needs of the people if their rights are violated.