This manuscript contains interesting research and a vital area to expand the existing knowledge. A good literature review was included. The literature review could have been improved by adding a small paragraph explaining the research and linking this gap to the research questions of this study. Well-developed research questions and hypotheses were based on the research aim and objectives. An appropriate research design has been used to collect data. The hypotheses were tested based on collected data. The conclusions were based on the analysed results. The author has given good recommendations at the end of the article.
