

Review of: "Weathering changes – livelihood adaptation to weather shocks in rural India by disadvantaged social groups"

Mildred Mushunje¹

¹ Midlands State University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. Full names of abbreviations in the first use should be done consistently.
2. Author to pay attention to proper consistent citation.
3. The study is very interesting, and paper has a lot of rich information, but this must be streamlined and be presented in a more organised mannner. The paper needs to flow better.
4. Separate sections e.g. Climate Change, India Social Classes, Migration etc Consider rephrasing of some sentences.
5. Proof editing is necessary to rid the paper of grammatica errors.
6. Alignment of sections is required.
7. Author should attend to the presentation of the research questions and data analysis. The research questions can be improved by crafting them in a more succinct manner.
8. Data analysis needs to be clearly articulated to show the methodology adopted.
9. There is excessive use of graphs, which can be streamlined and reduced.
10. The topic is very rich, but the contents of the article can be better presented to be aligned to the topic.