Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

In general, it seems to me that the article is well documented in theoretical and methodological terms, however, it seems to me that in the first part of the text where the theoretical position is raised, it should be clarified that the boundaries are also political and obey divisions that have been established at the federal or state level to make a separation between territories.

As mentioned in the article Municipal Boundaries: A Model of Solution "Municipal delimitation is a multidimensional problem, within which geography is one of its components, but it also includes economic, political and population factors that must also be analyzed, considering in the same way the characteristics of the neighboring municipalities that are being studied" (Bautista Andalón, Campos Cornejo, Gómez Mora, & Levine Gutiérrez, 2017, p. 98).

I also understand that the text tries to give a complete overview of the limits that human beings create in a perceptual way, so it seems relevant to me to mention the issue of political division as one more configuration of spatial limits and borders. Above all, because the results rather establish the entire socio-political configuration of territories.
