

Review of: "The Contradiction of Populism and Judicial Independence (Unraveling Alexander Bickel's Counter-Majoritarian Dilemma in the Context of the Indonesian Constitutional Court)"

Muchamad Ali Safa'at¹

¹ Universitas Brawijaya

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article is very useful for understanding the manifestation of populism and the Counter-Majoritarian Dilemma in some ICC decisions. However, I could not get it without reading those ICC decisions since this article does not give the abstracts of the analyzed decisions.

It will help the audience if the author adds a short description for each decision, at least the background and the legal/constitutional issues. So, the reader might understand why certain decisions are classified as populist when others are counter-majoritarian.