Theoretical framework should be revised. The hypothesis in this study is not really clear and more detailed rationale and justifications should be provided.

The Method sections should benefit from more detailed and precised information (for example, the description of participants in terms of number for each category) and also, the description of the instruments with sample of items.

At present the discussion section seems a little thin to me and I wonder if there is any more current research that could enable you to expand this section a bit more. It is not surprising that doctors had a highest mean knowledge score.
