Dear Editor,

This paper has an interesting topic describing the role of climate change and wildfires and presents potential strategies for adaptation and mitigation.

This paper is a review paper; while the review is well-written, I found that it has limited and old references, unclear methodology, and weak discussion, and does not present any new ideas. So it requires significant revisions to align with scientific standards.

I do not recommend it for publication in a journal unless improved by the following suggestions:

- explaining the novelty of this research
- investigating more recent scientific literature on this topic
- rearranging the methodology
- providing statistics related to the subject
- doing a deep analysis of the results supported by charts and data
- using more quantitative data in the discussion
