Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The work is well conceived and has the potential to impact the housing sector in Uganda and other similar countries in Africa; however, the following issues need to be addressed.

1. The objectives should include sustainable strategies for affordable housing, as captured in the title.
2. Methodology is too scanty and should include types of data, sources of data, sample size, population, etc.
3. The results should compare findings with other related works.
