

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Gelatinous drop-like corneal dystrophy

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Gelatinous drop-like corneal dystrophy. ORPHA:98957

Gelatinous drop-like corneal dystrophy (GDCD) is a form of superficial corneal dystrophy characterized by multiple prominent milky-white gelatinous nodules beneath the corneal epithelium, and marked visual impairment.