This is a very original and interesting manuscript about a complex theoretical topic which is demonstrated in a particular type of discourse.

The text is very well documented and well illustrated. However, if the author could provide more examples of his/her corpus of political discourse, it would be better for the reader to understand the phenomenon of the notion of conceptual metaphorization and its relationship of TW and DW.

Even though the topic is complex, the author explains text organization and structuring in a very good way, in particular through the different examples he/she presents in the paper. The different sections of the article are coherent and cohesive. It is a very good article and I recommend its publication.
