The manuscript need to be properly structured to ensure it follows the scientific process - Introduction, literature review, methodology, results and discussions, and finally recommendations and conclusion. Currently this structure was not followed, thus some critical aspects and information are missing from the manuscript.

The problem of the research is well articulated, however the critical component of research questions which is to guide the researcher in solving the identified research problem are missing.

Again, the theoretical foundation grounding the research and the whole methodology section is also unavailable in the manuscript presented. Also missing are the recommendations, conclusion and perhaps suggestion for follow up research that can be undertaken to find answers to any questions that this particular research failed to answer.
