Review of: "Emotional Intelligence and Cybervictimization: Stratified Multilevel Analysis With Synthetic Data"

Swarnima Tiwari

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper is well written, with strong analysis.

Please consider the following observations:

1. When describing the methodology of a study, it is crucial to provide clear and transparent details about how the sample was selected. The sample selection methodology can be outlined as follows:

- Population Definition
- Sampling Technique
- Sampling Frame
- Inclusion and Exclusion Criteria
- Sample Size Determination
- Recruitment Procedure: Participants were recruited through [describe the methods of recruitment, e.g., email invitations, in-person recruitment]. Clear information about the study's purpose, procedures, and confidentiality measures was communicated during the recruitment phase.
- Informed Consent:

1. Data Collection: [Specify the methods used for data collection, e.g., surveys, interviews, observations]. The data collection process adhered to standardized protocols to ensure consistency across participants.
2. The objective of the study should be moved before the hypothesis.
3. Hypothesis number 2 is not clear - please reframe it (it is neither null nor alternate).
4. The paper's formatting requires significant improvement to enhance its professionalism and readability."
5. There is no conclusion to the paper. It is advised to add a conclusion to the paper.