

Review of: "Will to Power: The Utility of Friedrich Nietzsche's Moral Philosophy for Philosophical Counseling"

Atf Azzouna<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of Tunis El Manar

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I enjoyed this new version much more, as it moved away from the case study to provide a more general framework for the use of LBT in the treatment of addictions, delving deeper into the will to power as a way of coping with suffering.

The change in title, highlighting the will to power and philosophical advice based on Nietzsche's moral philosophy, is also better.