The author has done a good job by writing a comprehensive review regarding the importance of mango in the immune system. The author is requested to review and cross-check the manuscript for spelling and grammar mistakes (like in the abstract, there is a grammar mistake, and in section 4 in the heading, there is a grammar mistake). The rest of the manuscript is highly recommended for publication. The author has covered all the necessary aspects of mango uses and benefits in the immune system. The author has cited relevant and latest references. All the essential bioactive components have been discussed. Best of luck from my side.
