

Review of: "Sustainable Development In Southeast Asia: Lessons, Partnerships, and English"

Brian Fairman¹

¹ James Cook University of North Queensland

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Please see my comments on the paper attached. The paper was written well, and the author showed a good understanding of English, particularly as a non-English speaker.

I have made several corrections on the paper itself, so I won't comment here again.

However, the paper lacked direction in defining the research question.

Who says this is a problem? (Literature review)

The "What," "Why," and "How" were not addressed.

Critical analysis requires that you explore these ideas/issues and link them to the question you are wishing to address.

May your journey continue!