Review of: "Enhancing Cocoa Crop Resilience in Ghana: The Application of Convolutional Neural Networks for Early Detection of Disease and Pest Infestations"

Soukaina Ouhame[1]

1 Université Ibn Toufail

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper demonstrates a well-structured layout, consisting of distinct sections that cover various aspects of the research. Additionally, the literature review provides relevant background information on AI's role in agriculture, with a specific focus on the cocoa industry. However, incorporating visual aids such as graphical representations of the methodology and utilizing tables or graphics to present results could enhance clarity and understanding.