

Review of: "Testosterone and the “Honor Culture” of Young Black Men"

Subaita Zubair<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> National University of Science and Technology

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

One of the interesting and attention-grabbing topics that have been explored. I enjoyed reading it.

I must say it can be carried out in the Muslim community and link the testosterone level with the act of “honor killing”, which is an act of murder, in which a person is murdered for his or her actual or perceived immoral behavior.

Correction: Capitalize S of Southerners

“southerners were more likely to think their reputation was threatened, more upset..”

Correction: Add reference here, the year in which Anderson did work

“ as described by Elijah Anderson”

Addition: As data for females and testosterone is added, I suggest some research should be added regarding them in the introduction section. Does honor culture play any role when it's female and testosterone or why they are even interviewed in the previous study? What were they seeking to find because in a woman it's the estrogen that has its role? It can be there in the introduction.