An excellent well researched article supporting the use of herbal extracts (Artemisia) for the management of Covid. The authors have presented very cogent arguments to support the use of herbal remedies in a disease condition where is enough scientific evidence confirming the folkloric uses of the Artemisia extracts as anti-inflammatory and anti-viral agents. Much as we appreciate the need for RCTs, there are instances where the traditional uses of the plants can be relied upon as providing some evidence of efficacy and necessitates the use of herbal extracts. An excellent article
