This is a well written article and it addresses a major public health concern i.e alcohol use among adolescents in Uganda. It equally utilizes a better model for understanding the problem.

I request the authors to consider removing socio-demographic results like age and sex from methods in the abstract section. I equally suggest adding some statistics in the results section of the abstract.

The conclusion should be the take home message and not the interpretation of results. You may consider making some changes here.

I recommend authors to share some of the study strengths.

Generally, the paper is well written and is worth publishing.
