

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Unified Modeling Language

National Cancer Institute

Source

National Cancer Institute. Unified Modeling Language. NCI Thesaurus. Code C54193.

A non-proprietary, third generation modelling language. The Unified Modeling Language is an open method used to specify, visualise, construct and document the artifacts of an object-oriented software-intensive system under development. The UML represents a compilation of "best engineering practices" which have proven successful in modelling large, complex systems.