Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. The article is very interesting, relevant, useful and adds knowledge to the body of literature.
2. Despite being a significant piece of work, this article lacks discrete methodology and findings, and the author has not followed any format to write the article. The article does not say if it's a review or original research, neither it follows any specific template to write research articles.
3. Similarly, the article needs a fresh proofreading for flow, clarity and consistency.
4. My comments are not for discouragement, rather for improvement. I am happy to provide any support or assistance to the author if needed. A little guidance can make a whole lot of difference and make this work publishable. I am happy to share my experience and email if the author is willing to work out this piece in a better way.
5. Thank you so much.
