

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Autosomal dominant deafness-onychodystrophy syndrome

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Autosomal dominant deafness-onychodystrophy syndrome. ORPHA:79499

Dominant deafness-onychodystrophy (DDOD) syndrome is a multiple congenital anomalies syndrome characterized by congenital hearing impairment, small or absent nails on the hands and feet, and small terminal phalanges.