

Review of: "Toward the Realization of Nanogate Capacitors: In Search of Practical Advice"

Norihiro Shimoi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The abstract should contain straightforward technical information. The novelty of the research objective should be made clear and straightforward by highlighting the need for further research in the field.

Block diagrams and tables could be used to make the text more comprehensible.

A more in-depth technical discussion of the observed patterns would make the explanation of the text easier to understand. It would be necessary to refer to published studies.

A summary introduction of relevant recent research would be appreciated in the introduction.