

Review of: "Impact of Men's Labour Migration on Non-migrating Spouses' Health: A Systematic Review"

Hainan Wu¹

¹ Anhui University of Finance and Economics

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is an interesting article analyzing the recent studies about LBW's health conditions. It helps to call for greater attention to the health of LBW. However, there are some aspects of this study seem unclear or ambiguous.

- 1) I understand the authors try to synthesize the results of previous research to make some comprehensive findings. It seems this work is not so easy. The previous studies were accomplished in different countries with differential socio-cultural background. A common conclusion might not be able to be made without distinct classification.
- 2) The timeline was not well kept either. The selected articles were published between 2005 and September 2022. Like spatial differences, temporal differences are not well distinguished. The early studies were compared with current ones on same topics.
- 3) Quantitative results were not well presented in this study. I'd like to suggest adding some percentage values or drawing relevant charts/tables.