

Review of: "Mediumship for Pets: A Pilot Study With a Triple-Blind Protocol"

Renaud Evrard¹

¹ University of Lorraine, Nancy, France

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article is innovative and clear. Very little research is done on "animal communication" or mediumship with pets.

It goes straight to its points.

The results are adequately nuanced due to the small sample.

I didn't understand what happened with the "control" reading for the squirrel, as it is alone in its category.

It's a pity so few qualitative informations are provided, including those on the effects of these readings on the participants.

But it's a very good proof-of-concept to guide further researchers.