

Review of: "Perceived Social Support as a Predictive Factor of Fatigue and Quality of Life Among Healthcare Professionals in Greece"

Sindu Bharath

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

At the outset, I congratulate the authors for their choice of topic because of its relevance to the post-pandemic situation.

Though the paper is structured well, the sampling framework is not detailed ... just mentioning a sample size of 500+ is too generic and vague and does not contribute to specific findings ... questions like who is a health care professional? What is their nature of work? What leads to burnout? need attention.

Answering these basic questions can bring the right direction for further perusal of the paper.