The aim of the SIPMO-SICMF Italian Position Paper on Medication- Related Osteonecrosis of the Jaw (MRONJ) is to set forth an original interpretation of the current disputes on MRONJ, providing updates on various aspects of this disease based on newly available data.

Given the open international debate on the topic and the complex therapeutic management of MRONJ, this initiative, in English language, is of great interest to the scientific community from a diagnostic, prognostic and therapeutic perspective.

Furthermore, this position paper originates from the multidisciplinary integration of the scientific knowledge and clinical experience of the various authors. All these factors suggest that this work may constitute a useful guideline for the international community.

If possible, I suggest making the background of the tables a bit darker or colored, because visually it looks almost white (in particular Tables 1-4, 6 and 7). This change could make it easier to view the lines.

The quality of the work is very high.
