

Review of: "Knowledge, Perception and Challenges of Implementing Nutrition Screening: A Survey of Healthcare Professionals"

Fitriana Mawardi¹

¹ Universitas Gadjah Mada

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper has interesting toping regarding the implementation nutrition screening among perioperative patient. The introduction shows clear enough the importance of this study. However in the method section need for explanation more about what health profession who include in this study and the cross-sectional method that used in this study. The level of education is needed to be involved in this study because the study related the knowledge that linked with level of education. The study can be improve with the strength of P value of each section.