

Review of: "Establishing a Multidisciplinary Human Resources Development Institute Under Public-Private Partnerships"

Kaushal Kumar¹

¹ University of Delhi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article revolves around establishing an institute under public-private partnership. The article talks about the benefits of a public-private partnership and the roles and responsibilities of different stakeholders involved. Some recommendations for improving the current draft are given below:

- The Introduction can be extended. It is suggested to specify the objectives of the study in the Introduction section clearly.
- Literature review can be updated. Now we are in 2024. Latest references can be added to support the research gap.
- Please clarify properly the assumptions that are new in the problem definition.
- The research methodology section should explain the methods adopted for carrying out the proposed research. Currently, this section lacks in this aspect.
- Recommendations of this article can be discussed more in the conclusion section.