

Review of: "Antimicrobial Ayurveda Crops as Superfoods for Export, Conservation & Farmers' Benefit"

Subramani Parasuraman¹

¹ Aimst University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The manuscript is interesting and explains the antimicrobial properties of Ayurvedic crops as superfoods. In the introduction section, the objective of the review should be given clearly. In the review, 4 herbs are taken for discussion. The rationale for the selection of these plants should be justified. Traditional medicine systems may use plants to exhibit antimicrobial activity. The method needs to be improved. The discussion part also needs to be improved. Overall, the manuscript is informative and requires minor revision.