

Review of: "Sustainable Development In Southeast Asia: Lessons, Partnerships, and English"

Anik Nunuk Wulyani¹

¹ State University of Malang

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. I know two kinds of articles: (1) conceptual articles and (2) research-based articles. This one may be a conceptual article.
2. The author discusses the significance of the Southeast Asia Ministerial Forum, a forum for fostering regional cooperation among Southeast Asian nations from the point of view of an outsider (not the participants of the forum itself). Thus, it might not be too convincing for the readers. The results might be more convincing if the author invited some critical persons from the forum to write together.
3. The author wrote: "This essay provides an analysis of the principal topics deliberated upon during the Southeast Asia Ministerial Forum, with a specific emphasis on policy priorities, optimal approaches, and inventive resolutions to promote the objectives of sustainable development. It recognizes the significance of imparting knowledge and insights gained from the implementation of sustainable development initiatives, as well as the capacity of inventive resolutions to motivate individuals and foster collaborative endeavors." However, readers could not find the analysis in the essay. Hence, it is strongly recommended that the author reread and rewrite his essay to show his arguments and analysis. Good luck!