

Review of: "Traditional soap plants used in hand hygiene can play an important role in curbing COVID-19 and other infectious diseases. So why is there little research?"

Rafeef Abdul-jabar¹

¹ University of Basrah

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

dear sir I think you wrote a short article earlier on the same subject and this was very interesting and in it you can highlight the lack of research on the ability of saponins to act as hand washes or sanitizers. But now in this article, you use the same topic in an attempt to learn about the Aboriginal peoples community, their lives, their ways of dealing with health problems and their acceptance of outside medical help, in addition to all attempts to introduce them to the world. All of it was excellent, but I think you should have chosen another location to achieve your goal. Your article was too long to simply read and it would be much more accessible if it was shown as a video on social media or as a TV show with various profile pictures of your beautiful community and civilization.