In general, it might be reasonable to study through major revision. There are several comments as follows:

- 1- Literature Review is entirely missing. There is some literature in the introduction. However, it is very limited. The literature review section should be added to the study, or the introduction should be completely revised.
- 2- The Methodology section is quite difficult to follow. There is a need for a roadmap of the study. A figure can be useful.
- 3- The Discussion is quite limited. What are the potential practical contributions of the study? What kind of theoretical contributions exist? What was the gap in the literature, and how can these findings be able to fill these gaps?

Overall, I believe there is a need for major revision.
