

Review of: "SAM: A Language for Education"

László Marác¹

¹ University of Amsterdam

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Dear Author,

The article SAM: A Language for Education is an interesting article that is attempting to develop a sociological language based on three 'relation spaces' containing a set of variables. The article is well-structured, well-written, and well-argued. I recommend publication of the article with a few minor revisions. I have attached the original draft with a number of questions for further clarifications and elaboration.