

Review of: "Richir's Phenomenological and Symbolical as a Model for the Relationship between Phenomenology and Theology"

Jorge Roggero¹

¹ University of Buenos Aires

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article presents an original and sound hypothesis based on Gondek and Tengelyi's suggestion. It is well structured and very clear about its aims and objectives. The arguments are well supported. Nevertheless the text can be improved with references to the secondary literature (there are no references to articles on Richir's phenomenology). On the other hand, it can also be improved with a more detailed analyses of the relevance of Janicaud's thesis on Marion, who actually assumes a "methodological atheism" strategy in Being given.