Congratulations on the article.

As strong points, I would like to highlight that this manuscript is adapted to a topic that is currently in demand, so the subject matter is very appropriate. On the other hand, the writing is correct, although it is worth mentioning certain limitations that are set out below:

Clarify the general and specific objectives of the research and highlight them more clearly before the methodology section.

There are at least two limitations in the research: the authors focus on a single university, which makes it difficult or at least limits the extrapolation of the conclusions to other similar institutions. Another limitation to consider is the sample size, 43 academics for an organization of this size can be very limiting.

I hope you find my contributions useful.
