The manuscript is well-written and the topic is engaging. However, a few minor corrections are required. Firstly, it is suggested that Tables 1, 2, and 3 be consolidated into a single table for better organization and to avoid overcrowding the manuscript. Secondly, there are some linguistic errors that need to be addressed.

Additionally, there are several limitations that detract from the study's value, such as a small sample size, a short follow-up period, and the study design. Despite these limitations, the intriguing topic should serve as motivation for further research and the conduct of more robust studies in the future.
